

CREATIVE STRATEGIST

Rudy Goel. The results.

I find what makes your customer buy and turn it into hooks and ads. Here's what that did for the account I work on right now.

219	343	62%	547K
booked sales calls in 5 weeks	applications through the funnel I built	of those applications came off one reel I made	impressions, reaching 152K people

LATEST

Every booked call is a shot at a US$2,500 to $6,000 coaching sale, so Meta only counts a booked sales call as a result. Latest 5 weeks (3 Oct to 6 Nov): 51 booked calls at £15.50 each.

DJ Accelerator, by the numbers

Kishan Bodalia's DJ coaching brand. A high-ticket funnel selling a US$2,500 to $6,000 programme. Meta ads, Jul to Nov 2026. I run the creative strategy and the media buying.

Impressions, whole account	547,441
Leads, lifetime	661 at £5.53
Booked calls, latest 5 weeks	51 at £15.50
Top reel, "You're way too old"	492 leads at £4.16
Top reel spend	£2,048
Top reel click-through rate	7.99%
Applications off one VSL page	223
Best static click-through rates	7% to 13.9%
Average cost per link click	£0.25

What I actually built

The ads, plus everything between the scroll and the sales call.

- The ads. Reels, UGC scripts and statics, each one built around a single reason to buy.
- Three VSL pages, each written for a different buyer. The "not too old" page brought in 223 applications by itself.
- A scoring form that grades every application. Meta only hears about the people who can afford the program.
- The pixel fix. It was firing on a button click. Now it fires on qualified applications, then booked calls. So Meta goes and finds more people who can pay.
- Booked-call emails wired from Calendly into Kit, so more people actually turn up to the call.

How I work

1. Listen first

Reviews, Reddit, comments and the Ad Library. I want the exact words your customers use before I write a single hook.

2. One reason per ad

Every concept goes after one buying reason. That's how you get 15 to 20 concepts a week that don't all say the same thing.

3. Judge on the right number

High CTR can still mean nobody buys. I judge every ad on cost per qualified lead or purchase, twice a week.

3+ years in DTC from running 5 of my own ecom stores (2020 to 2023). And because I do the media buying too, I know what every number in the account means.

The ads, and what they did.

Video REELS, TALKING HEADS, AI UGC

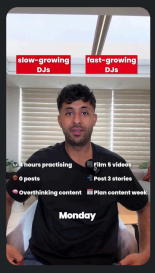

THE WINNER

"You're way too old to make this DJing thing happen"

TALKING HEAD REEL

492 leads at £4.16 · £2,048 spent · 7.99% CTR

One reel carried the whole account. It took more than half of the total spend for a US$2.5K to $6K offer.

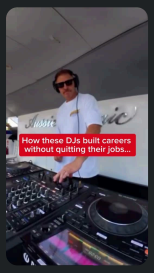

Slow-growing vs fast-growing DJs

TALKING HEAD + ON-SCREEN LISTS

18 leads at £8.76 · 5.46% CTR

The second biggest video by spend, after the winner.

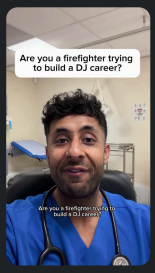

How these DJs built careers without quitting their jobs

B-ROLL MONTAGE

17 leads at £7.45 · 6.08% CTR

Mechanic, doctor, firefighter. Every cut is a job the viewer already has.

"Are you a firefighter trying to build a DJ career?"

OCCUPATION CALLOUT

18 leads at £3.37 · 4.17% CTR

18 leads off £61. Calling out the job got the cheapest leads of these four videos.

AI UGC

"You're way too old"

AI UGC · 54 SEC

The winning angle again, this time from a creator's mouth. I made it without a shoot or a paid creator.

AI UGC

The DJ who bins his decks

AI UGC · PATTERN-BREAK HOOK

8 seconds, no words. The decks go in the wheelie bin. Then the hook.

Statics MADE IN-HOUSE, NO DESIGNER

Breaking news

33 leads at £5.44 · 7.06% CTR

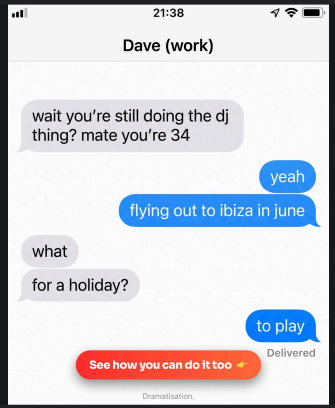

The top static by spend. The first version got 20 leads at £3.56.

Before / after

9.1% to 13.9% CTR

The best click-through in the account.

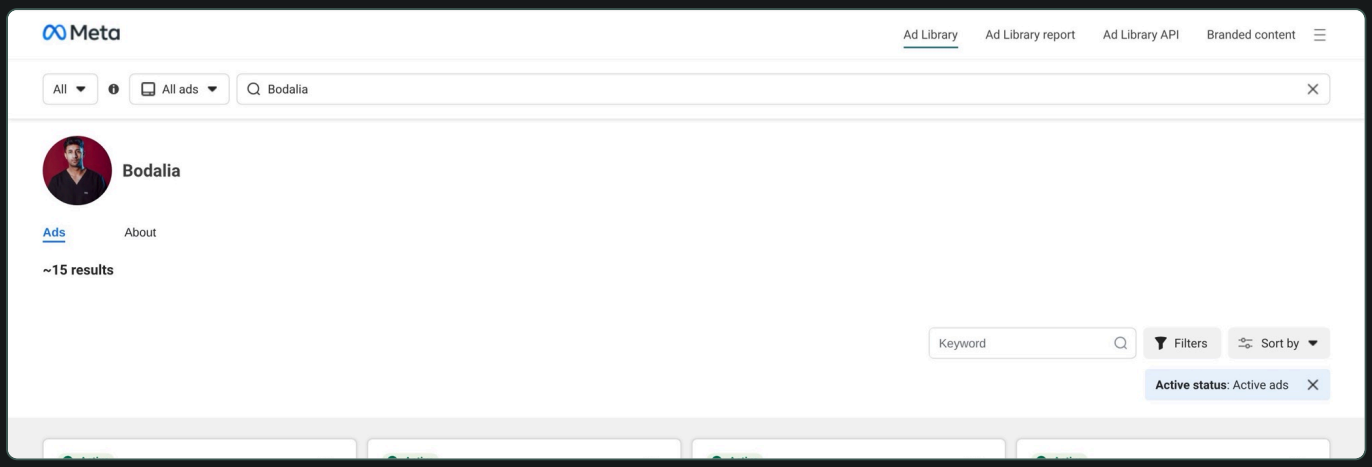

The mate's text chain

7.00% CTR

A fake iMessage thread with a mate who thinks he's too old.

FROM THE META AD LIBRARY

Don't take my word for it.

Kishan's page in the Meta Ad Library, 4 Oct 2026. ~15 ads, all from the account I run.

Also on my plate

- Lead creative strategist for a UK supplement brand. 15 briefs a week, each one 1 body with 3 hooks, so 45 ads a week with full scripts and media buying direction.
- A 30-page research document for that brand, built from 3,000 customer comments.
- Simon Squibb's business competition. A live campaign through Sean Ferres' CMB course. My ads got 127 registrations at £1.54 each, 5th of 26 strategists, against a £1.87 average.

What I'd bring to your brand

- 15 briefs a week, 70% video. Hook, bridge and body, ready for your editors to cut.
- An angle map before the first brief. Pain points, dream states and mechanisms, from your customers' own words.
- Support for your media buyer. I'll read the account twice a week and flag what to cut and what to scale, based on CAC.
- Someone who'll tell you when something on the page or the funnel is costing you sales.

Full video files and the brief behind every ad above are ready to send.
